

Outline of the Process under Redding's Pilot Program

1. Initiation of the process through the First Selectman's Office.
2. Meeting with historical consultant to determine historically-significant elements planned for preservation.
3. Documentation of historically-significant elements and drafting of preservation language within the Town's easement template (by historical consultant, with advice of the Town Historian).
4. Determination of historic-designation status of the property; if necessary application for listing in the State of Connecticut Historical Resources Inventory (services in obtaining designation are an additional cost to you).
5. Review of easement language by your and the Town's attorneys.
6. Donation of the Historic Preservation Easement to the Town of Redding, with the Redding Preservation Society designated by agreement with the Town to provide administrative, monitoring and monitoring services.
